AT WORK AMONG MILLIONS OF WORMS.

Bark Peelers in Pennsylvania Have Disagreeable Companions.

The Lumber Interests of a Great Section are Threatened.

Farmers Smiling This Year Because Their Fields Smile Too.

PITTSBURG, Pa., August 2.—Potter county is alarmed over the ravages of a worm that is destroying the foliage and killing off the hemlock timber. A remarkable scene is presented in the "choppings" where the bark peelers are at work. The worms are swarming about the men by millions, while all the way from Coudersport to Port Allegany, miles and miles of trees are turning brown and ruin is threatened to the vast lumber interests of that section. The worm is of the measuring worm species, about an inch long and barely an eighth of an inch in diameter. Reports from other counties state the same worm in countless numbers is devasting the hemlocks there.

COOL AND FAVORABLE.

Report of the Signal Service on the Weather and the Crops.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—The weather crop bulletin for the week has the following features:

Temperature—The week was cool in all regions east of the Rocky Mountains, except along the Gulf coast. In the northwest, and in states north of the Ohio valley, the daily temperature was from six to eight degrees below the normal. The same conditions prevailed over New York and Pennsylvania and the greater portion of Arkansas. From the lower Ohio valley westward to Kansas the deficiency in temperature amounted to about four degrees per day. To the west of the Rocky Mountains the weather was warmer than usual, except along the California and Oregon coasts, where the normal temperature prevailed.

New Jersey—All crops greatly improved. Threshing of oats is general. Apples and pears continue in good condition, but peaches are not as good.

Maryland—The outlook is promising for an average crop of corn and tobacco.

Indiana—Wheat threshing is nearing completion. Ploughing for wheat has commenced.

New England—Hay and grain harvest has been delayed by unfavorable weather; grain somewhat injured by heavy rains and high winds. Warmer weather is needed, though tell crops are making rapid growth. Tobacco is in good condition.

Iowa—Weather generally favorable for hay harvesting, threshing and small grains included. The hay crop is heavy and the prospects are flattering for flax and potatoes. Corn is growing fairly well.

North Carolina—Cotton is growing to weed, and is not fruiting well; in the western district more favorable conditions prevail.

Alabama—Too much rain for cotton; in the southwestern counties insects are attacking the crop. Corn has been benefited.

Nebraska—Rather unfavorable weather conditions prevailed; too cool for rapid growth of corn, which is now at least 15 days late. Threshing has commenced in the southern portion and a large yield is indicated.

Wisconsin—Oats show a marked improvement and promise a good crop. A fair crop of barley has been harvested. Potatoes in good condition. Corn is not as promising as formerly.

Oregon—Harvesting in operation; wheat was never better, and promises al arge yield; hop lice and red spider are doing some damage. Fruit prospects are good.

Tennessee—A large second crop of Irish potatoes has been planted. Outlook splendid.

South Carolina—Young cotton has grown so rapidly it has but little or no fruit.

Louisiana—Cane is growing well. Rice is promising. Cotton prospects continue favorable. A good crop is assured.

Kentucky—The general outlook is good. Peaches and apples abundant.

New York—Oat harvesting is progressing in the Hudson valley, and the yield is good. Corn is generally late, but good; potatoes are excellent; a large yield of peaches, plums and pears. Apples late but sound; grapes below the average.

RAIN CAME LATE.

Cattle and Their Owners Suffering from Too Much Sunshine.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., August 2.—A terrible drouth in Southwest Texas for nine weeks was broken last night by a storm followed by rain. Only two showers had fallen for nine weeks in the vast area south of San Antonio for 200 miles and west for 100 miles. Cotton bolls had begun to drop from the stems, the corn crop was ruined and the cattle ranges have been parched. Great destitution was prevailed for about two weeks. In Hidalgo and Stark counties many cattle have died from want of grass. That country is now destitute on account of three annual drouths and the listlessness of the semi-civilized condition that prevails. Last night's storm was very severe throughout the country.

MAINE.

The Fleet at Bar Harbor.

BAR HARBOR, August 2.—Admiral Gherardi, his son and a party of officers, came on shore from the white ships this morning to attend church. Visitors were allowed on board today from 10 until 5 o'clock and crowds availed themselves of the opportunity. The Dispatch, with Secretary Tracy on board, is reported due here tonight. Practice with the secondary batteries will begin tomorrow.

Secretary Blaine is steadily improving in health. Though seldom seen in the village, he takes various drives about the island and indulges regularly in long walks. Admiral Gherardi and a number of his officers, in full uniform, called on Secretary Blaine yesterday.

NEW LONDON, August 2.—Secretary Tracy arrived this morning on the Dispatch from New York, bound to the eastward. The Squadron of Evolution sail in the morning for New York.

The Old Orchard Meetings.

OLD ORCHARD, August 2.—The Union Holiness meetings under the leadership of Rev. Dr. McLean of New York closed tonight after a very interesting session. The meetings have been hindered considerably by rain but onthe whole have been very wellattended. During the coming week, the camp grounds will be occupied by the Maine Woman's Chistian Temperance Union, the chief feature of whose series of meetings will be the school of methods.

The Shawmut Fibre Company's Mill.

WATERVILLE, August 1.—The insurance companies have settled with the Shawmut Fibre Company paying $107,000. The boilers wheels, foundation and chimney of the old mill can be used in the new one which the fibre company will erect.

Livermore Falls Booming.

LIVERMORE FALLS, August 1.—Work on the new pulp mill will begin at once, Mr. Hugh Chisholm, having been here this week making arrangements. Besides this new mill, there is a prospect of an extensive addition at the Umbagog, which will make a building 700 feet long, a new pulp mill to be built at Otis Falls and a paper mill at Jay Bridge.

Charles Got Off Easy.

LEWISTON, August 1.—Charles Minoty, stabbed his wife with a case knife last evening because supper wasn't ready when he came home. The Municipal Court gave him one month in jail this morning.

Thinks He Has Found Hall.

AUGUSTA, August 1.—A Wisconsin detective thinks he has found Hall, the Bangor murderer, who killed a man from Nova Scotia, and has written for photograph, descriptions, etc. He has the suspect under surveillance.

Safety for the Tenants.

LEWISTON, August 1.—Today the board of engineers finished the work of inspection and Monday the proprietors of 300 tenement buildings will be officially notified by Chief Engineer Moriarity that proper fire escapes must be placed on their buildings within sixty days as the law provides.

Charles Lorain Arrested.

BRUNSWICK, August 1.—A man calling himself Charley Lorain was arrested here today for a robbery at Lisbon Falls on Wednesday. The property was found on his person and identified.

May Locate in Biddeford.

BIDDEFORD, August 1.—A representative of the Weymouth Lock Company, Gardiner, was here today looking for quarters to establish a factory.

Died in Two Hours.

BIDDEFORD, August 2.—Joseph Staples, aged about 70, while unloading hay yesterday afternoon fell from the load, struck on his head and died in two hours.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS AND CROQUET.

Subjects To Which the Chautauquans Devoted Saturday.

[Special to the Press.]

FRYEBURG, August 1.—The fifth day of the Maine Chautauqua Union has been cloudy from early morning, and the cool temperature throughout the day brought out the heavy wraps. The fourth normal lecture was delivered this morning, the speaker dealing in a very fitting manner with "The Story of the Manuscripts."

At the cooking school, Miss Barrows gave her class instructions in cooking poultry.

The exercises of the afternoon, under the direction of Mr. E. P. Wentworth and Mr. E. S. Everett, were interesting. The first speaker, the Rev. Mr. Sands of Lewiston, gave some ideas as to what is necessary to have a successful Sunday school, and the manner and method of conducting the school. His talk was interspersed with a few well chosen anecdotes, which well illustrated several points in his line of thought. The second speaker, Rev. Charles F. Morse, spoke in a few well chosen words of Sunday school work and the necessity of having a man at the head of the school who was capable and fitted for the position.

The next speaker, Rev. M. S. Hughes of Portland, spoke at considerable length upon the "Relation of children to the church," showing what that relation was in the early church, and later in the time of Christ. He spoke very enthusiastically and especially so when urging the necessity and importance of children coming to Christ.

A small party took the well known trip "round river," leaving the grove early this morning. This is a delightful trip, and all visitors at Fryeburg should not miss an opportunity of taking the sail.

A party of Wellesley girls from the class of '90 are quartered in a cottage on the grounds.

Excitement is again beginning to develop in croquet, and the ground in front of the Grove House is constantly occupied. There is talk of building a lawn tennis court.

The trains today have brought more people than on any previous day, and activity about the grounds is beginning to show itself

The Rev. Dr. Spalding preached an able sermon on Sunday, and the vesper service was interesting.

ON TO DETROIT.

The Old Soldiers Concentrating Their Forces for the Annual Muster.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., August 2.—At noon the train bearing the Vermont delegates arrived over the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg road. Attached to the train were cars bearing the Woman's Relief Corps and the private car of President Smith of the Central Vermont railroad, which had been placed at the disposal of Commander-in-Chief Veazey and party. At 3 p. m. the Washington delegation came in, about 1000 strong, and divided up between the different hotels. Prominent among the party was Secretary Proctor. After a light lunch the party started out for a carriage drive to the different points of interest. The Washington delegates say they will vote for a man who will go for Washington for the next meeting place.

A Maine Boy's Fortune.

NEW YORK, August 1.—One of the Searles executors, who was seen by a reporter today and questioned as to the clause in Mrs. Searles's will relating to her adopted son, Timothy Hopkins, said that Mrs. Hopkins-Searles transferred a very considerable amount of property to her adopted son in her life time, and that he was so well provided for then that there was no occasion for making any provision for him in the will.

Timothy Hopkins was born in Maine about 30 years ago. His parentage was humble, his father's name being Nolan. His father went to California when the boy was an infant and was given employment by Mark Hopkins. Later Nolan sent for his wife to come on, but when she arrived she found that her husband had been drowned while she was en route. The boy was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, they being childless. After the death of her husband, Mrs. Hopkins adopted the boy legally, just before he reached the age of 21 years, and was given a good education. Later he married a niece of his late mother by adoption. Young Hopkins is now on his way from Japan to San Francisco, where he resides.

At the Kittery Yard.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—The report of the naval board on the appointment of master foremen at the Portsmouth Navy Yard has been received at the navy department. The following named men have been recommended for appointment:

Construction department—Master shipwright, W. F. Noyes; master joiner, F. W. Brooks; master ship fitter, J. H. Flag; master shipsmith, George W. Muchmore; master boat builder, Augustus Stevens; quarterman plumber, S. K. Marston; quarterman sparmaker, C. A. Wendell; quarterman calker, C. M. Osgood; quarterman painter, J. H. Gardiner; dockmaster, Daniel P. Parry.

Steam engineering department—Master machinist, E. D. Rand; master boiler maker, M. E. Long; quarterman pattern maker, S. H. Pillsbury; quarterman moulder, John Drew.

Equipment department—Quarterman sailmaker, Henry C. Lovell; quarterman rigger, W. F. Pinkham.

Yards and docks department—Foreman laborer, Charles H. Bartlett.

Secretary Tracy has approved the report and has appointed the candidates as best qualified. Action on the position of master boat builder is deferred pending an investigation of charges that Stevenson, the present incumbent, endeavored to persuade by threats one of his competitors from appearing. The matter has been referred to the commandant of the Portsmouth yard for investigation.

Only two changes are made by the naval board as the result of the examination—one quarterman painter and foreman laborer in yards and docks department.

The San Domingo Treaty.

WASHINGTON, August 1.—The President today issued a proclamation accepting reciprocity with San Domingo, under the tariff of October, which with a view to securing reciprocity, exempted from duty sugar, molasses, coffee and hides, imported into the United States. By this treaty live meat, oats, flour, hay, teas, coal, mineral waters, machinery, iron, steel, lumber, school, books, papers and many other articles manufactured in the United States, will be admitted to San Domingo after September 1 free, and many other articles will be admitted at a reduction of 25 per cent on the duty.

Miss Maggie Blaine Hurt.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—Miss Maggie Blaine, niece of Secretary Blaine, was seriously injured last evening by jumping from a carriage while the horse attached to it was beyond the control of the driver. Miss Blaine struck headforemost upon the pavement, causing concussion of the brain. The young lady was badly cut about the head, but her physicians think her injuries will not prove fatal.

Interesting to Maine People.

WASHINGTON, August 2.—Pensions have been granted to the following Maine people:

Captain Thompson's Story.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Eric Axel Eklund, carpenter of the American ship J. F. Chapman, before Commissioner Shields yesterday, repeated the charge of cruelty made against Joseph A. Thompson, the master of the vessel. Maxwell Evarts, Assistant United States Attorney, appeared for the prosecution and W. W. Goodrich for the defendant.

Captain Thompson took the witness stand in his own behalf. He is of Bath, Me., and is sixty-one years old. He declared that Eklund shirked his work habitually and finally became insolent. It was then that the captain put him in irons. The irons were fastened to the boom, but the man's feet were at all times firmly on the deck, the captain says. An adjournment was taken until Tuesday on account of the absence of witnesses.

Oklahoma Democrats Resolve.

OKLAHOMA CITY, August 2.—The territorial Democratic convention yesterday declared against statehood and denounced the McKinley bill, the demonetization of silver and the extravagance of the last Congress. A committee was appointed to investigate the title by which the Republican delegate to Congress held his office.

TERROR REIGNED AMONG THE DANCERS

Pistol and Knife Stopped the Festivities in a Colorado Town.

An Attempt to Shoot the Murderer Fatal to a Woman.

All of a Family of Seven Killed in West Virginia.

DENVER, Col., August 2.—At a ball in Blue Mountains, July 24, a terrible tragedy occurred which has seldom been equalled in the history of crime. While the dancing was going on merrily, a tough character named Tom Roach insisted upon dancing. He was drunk and armed with a knife and six-shooter. He was told the sets were all full and was requested not to interfere with the persons already on the floor. But he declared that he would dance and took hold of a gentleman and attempted to remove him from the floor. This was resented and the parties became engaged in a scuffle, when a young man named Frank A. Hyde son of a Moncos merchant, William Hyde, attempted to end the disturbance. Roach turned upon Hyde and viciously stabbed him with his knife, inflicting dangerous wounds in various places. Roach left the room but continued to act in a disorderly manner. A cowboy named Billy McCord tried to pacify Roach by going out where he was and talking to him. This enraged him more than ever and, drawing his gun, he killed McCord on the spot. By this time excitement was becoming intense, and, as no one was armed, the people were almost panic stricken. A boy slipped away to a house near by, and, securing a Winchester, returned to the school house. He took aim and fired, but missed Roach and killed Mrs. Walton, an estimable woman living in the community. By this time, terror reigned supreme, and in the excitement Roach left the place, since which time he has not been seen. The entire community is searching for him.

FATHER AND SONS KILLED

And Then the Mother and Daughters Also Murdered.

CATTLETTSBURG, Ky., August 2.—Wayne county, W. Va., was the scene of a series of murders Friday night. Mr. Brumfield, his wife and five children were murdered in the most horrible manner and their bodies consumed by fire. About midnight 50 Italian railroad laborers became drunk and started on a tour of devastation. The Brumfield family was thought to have considerable money. The Italians went to the Brumfields' residence and were refused admission. The doors and windows were then set fire to and were fired upon. Mr. Brumfield, with his two half grown sons, fought with desperation, but were finally murdered, their throats being cut from ear to ear and their bodies cut and badly stabbed. Mrs. Brumfield and her three little children were next killed by the drunken Italians, who then searched the house for money and then set it on fire. Mr. Brumfield was influential and wealthy. Two or three years ago, while county commissioner he opposed the building of a new court house and thus made many enemies. The court house was built, and it is thought Friday night's work was the result of an old feud, and that Brumfield's enemies supplied the Italians with liquor and then pointed out the path to the residence.

IN DARKEST NEW YORK.

One Day's Long Array of Horrible Crime and Fatal Accident.

NEW YORK, August 2.—The Metropolis furnishes its usual number of Sunday horrors today. The body of an unknown woman, evidently a domestic, was found in the East river off Market street.

During a fight last night in Brooklyn James Sielly of Fulton street knocked down, and trampled on the skull of, Thomas Murphy of York street. Sielly was arrested.

John Cassidy, aged 20, fell into the Gowanus canal, Brooklyn, while drunk last night and was drowned.

William Cornell, his wife and mother-in law, Mrs. Ruth, of Water street, Brooklyn, drank of soup today in which Paris Green had been accidently spilled. A stomach pump saved their lives.

John Haas, aged 20, a brick layer, was struck by a locomotive in Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, last night and instantly killed. The engineer and conductor of the train were arrested.

The body of a girl, 20 years old, who had been chloroformed to death in a lonely place in the suburbs of Long Island City, was found this morning.

William Scott, a negro, was horribly stabbed in an unknown manto called "Yellow" last night outside of a groggery at 526 Broome street. Scott was literally disembowelled and will die. "Yellow" escaped.

Thomas Jackson, a negro, robbed and assaulted several ladies in the street yesterday. Being pursued he ran to Fourth avenue and jumped through one of the apertures into the central railroad tunnel. He was captured two hours later. He was severely cut and bruised.

THE PRESS.

MONDAY, AUGUST 3.

We do not read anonymous letters and communications. The name and address of the writer are in all cases indispensable, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot undertake to retain or preserve communications that are not used.

The Russian Jews seem to have taken the place in party platforms formerly occupied by the Irish tenants.

It looks as though Mr. Parnell's party would soon be composed entirely of himself and wife. About all the prominent Irish leaders have already deserted him.

Col. Roger Q. Mills evidently does not expect the aid of the Farmers' Alliance in his campaign for the Speakership. He has just characterized their sub-treasury scheme as folly.

An intimate personal friend of the Hon. J. H. Manley tells the Lewiston Journal that Mr. Manley is surely a candidate for the third district nomination and will make a strong fight for it.

It is reported that the District Attorney of New York has concluded to indict all the New York papers that published accounts of the recent electrical executions at Sing Sing. At the same time, the District Attorney is quoted as saying that he considers the law which forbids publication of the details of executions a bad one. In the face of this declaration it looks as if the prosecution would not be a very vigorous one. At any rate there will be very little heart in it.

The old-time telegraphers are to have a reunion in Washington before long. The introduction of telegraphy into this country was not so long ago that many of them may not be able to remember the beginning of the great invention in the city where it had its first practical trial. The improvements made in telegraphy within their lifetimes, and the strides this method of communication has made in popular favor will be never ending themes of conversation with them. The first attempt to report the doings of Congress by telegraph from the Capitol building was in 1857. The first telegraph office in the Capitol was then opened by affixing a single instrument on a window sill in one of the stairways leading to the old hall of the House of Representatives. The amount of matter sent for many years was insignificant. Up to 1861 this one office in the Capitol, with one operator, handled all the press matter and private despatches. During this period the greatest number of words sent during the day session of Congress was 5000, and the greatest number of private dispatches 150. Up to the breaking out of the war, 25,000 words of press matter was considered a good night's work at the main telegraph office. The press sent 75,000 the night President Lincoln was assassinated, and at that time it was considered an enormous feat. But it was little compared with what is done now. A Washington correspondent has ascertained that the day that President Garfield was shot the Western Union sent 270,000 words. This was exclusive of the work of the Baltimore and Ohio lines, of the regular press associations over their own wires, and of the vast amount of matter sent on the private wires of the newspapers. The total ranged between 350,000 and 400,000. The maximum of press work by the Western Union was reached on the occasion of President Cleveland's inauguration. The total on that day was 600,000. Besides, the press associations and the special wires were correspondingly busy. The present daily summer average of the Western Union is from 80,000 to 90,000 words. The average during the sessions of Congress now ranges from 150,000 to 200,000 daily. This is the work in a single city, although perhaps the greatest city in the country for the transmission of press despatches. But the commercial business of Washington cannot be anything like that of New York or Chicago. Wonderful progress the old telegraphers have witnessed in the days of the years of their pilgrimages!

The Argus returned to the tariff Saturday and signalized its exploit with the assertion that the duty on raw sugar was strictly a protective duty. We will admit that the duty on sugar was intended to be a protective duty when it was put on. It was thought that enough sugar might be produced in Louisiana to supply the needs of the country at a low price. But after a fair trial it was found out that Louisiana could not produce enough to supply our wants, and that our main reliance must be upon foreign sugar. Hence it becomes evident that the tariff on sugar was essentially the same as the tariff on tea and coffee,—a revenue tariff and not a protective tariff. The Argus, in arguing that the sugar tariff was a protective tariff, says "we did produce sugar, we do produce sugar, we can produce sugar. According to the supporters of the McKinley bill there is every probability that in a few years we shall produce all the sugar needed for our own consumption and perhaps have a surplus for export. If this should be done by the means of a bounty, it will be convincing proof that it could have been done under a protective tariff, provided the duty were high enough to prevent the competition of the foreign products which is the principal of the McKinley bill as a whole." This is an entire misconception of the existing condition. We never have been able to produce sugar as we have produced paper and iron and other protected articles, which have supplied our own markets and competed with foreign products. It was because we expected never to be able to do this that the duty on sugar was taken off. The object of the bounty is entirely misrepresented by the Argus. The bounty was not intended to build up the sugar industry in this country. There were many sugar planters in the good old Democratic State of Louisiana who had invested a great deal of money in farms and plants for the manufacture of sugar, under the implied promise of the government that they should be protected. When it was found that this protection taxed the people without any prospect that it would ever be anything but a tax, the Republicans decided to remove it. But in order that they might not use unfairly the men in Louisiana who had embarked their capital in the business, they put on a temporary bounty to take the place of the tariff until the sugar planters might get out of the business. The sugar bounty was intended only to allow the sugar planters to get out without ruin from the business which the government had induced them to enter under certain promises of recompense. With this end in view the bounty decreases each year, and terminates entirely within a limited time. The sugar bounty was a measure of good faith undertaken by a Republican Congress for the benefit of the Democratic sugar planters of Louisiana. The Argus misrepresents entirely the nature of the sugar tariff and the intent of the bounty.

CURRENT COMMENT.

WHACKING SENATOR FRYE.

[From Mr. Blaine's Letter to Mr. Frye.]

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 22, 1890.

Dear Mr. Frye:

You ask me what assurance I have as to Spain's willingness to enter into reciprocal arrangements of trade with the United States.

[From the Evening Express of August 1.]

Why do not some of our esteemed contemporaries which were squirting their cold and dirty water upon this policy of Mr. Blaine a year ago, repeat their inquiry, "What proof has Mr. Blaine that Spain desires to establish reciprocal trade relations with the United States," and put some more fool questions to the front?

Accidental Benevolence.

James Payn, the English novelist, is the author of this short, but interesting, story: "When I was a small boy I was taken to call upon a most excellent clergyman, who had a missionary box upon his drawing-room table. I was too small to be interested in the conversation, and so, after looking at the pictures and out of the window, I amused myself with trying whether a five-shilling piece—all the money I had in the world, invested in that gigantic coin for safety—would go into the slit in the box. It was a close fit, but unfortunately it did go, and slipped out of my fingers. There was a terrible metallic crash—a rock of silver falling into a sea of copper—and then, as the novelists say, 'I knew no more.' When I came to myself I found my family and the clergyman in raptures over my charitable act. I have given considerable money to the missionary cause since then, but never a sum with such ill grace or one that bankrupted me more completely."

Water That Lost a Customer.

[New York Herald.]

It is fun to watch the pineapple man. He is a generous fellow, and the slabs of pine that he cuts off and retails for a nickel are thick and sweet, and his trade is large.

Unto him clerks, newsboys and millionaires come the livelong day to refresh themselves with fruit. He peels and cuts and cuts and peels, and still the demand continues.

A Wall street banker stops and buys a piece; an editor refreshes his inner man with a slab of pine; a street gamin wheedles a nickel slice out of the old man for a penny. An old, decrepit woman, with a cheek as hard as that of the statue of Liberty, comes up and asks him for a slice. The pineapple man looks at her a minute, subtracts a thin slice from the heap and gives it to the beggar, and she goes on her way rejoicing.

At last the curbstone merchant gets out his dinner pail and eats a hearty meal. It never occurs to him to flavor it with some of his luscious stock in trade, and he goes dessertless.

When he is through he takes out a very small tin pail of water and sprinkles some of it upon the fruit to keep it from getting dry. Then he carefully washes his hands in the pail, and then, oh, heavens! he carefully covers up the pail, as if water were precious under the shadow of the postoffice and with the free drinking fountain not thirty feet away!

Thank you, not today! I was going to treat myself to pines, but something has suddenly stolen my appetite away

The Neglect of the Groom.

[Boston Journal.]

A person about to be married has sent in a complaint for public consideration against the constant neglect which the bridegroom receives from the press, from the friends of the contracting parties and often from their immediate families. All interest centers in the bride, whose dress is described in voluminous detail, whose bouquet is not considered beneath mention, and whose face, blushing beneath her veil, is the most pleasing attraction of the wedding.

The bridesmaids, lovely girls, fluttering in dainty colors, are worth more than a passing notice. The ushers, the guests, and even the organist, are spoken of in an appreciative manner. Sometimes there is consideration shown to the sexton of the church. But where is the groom? There are columns of descriptions of weddings in the daily press, and in these columns the personality of the groom is passed over without a glimmer of apology.

How does the groom dress? What is his choice of flower? Do his gloves fit? Are his shoes of patent leather? Nobody knows these interesting details, although they are undoubtedly important to the neglected man. His presence is supposed from occasional mention of the "young couple," and he probably may be seen skulking around the corner of the pulpit; but he is evidently in a hurry for the completion of the matter. It is not his occasion. Unfortunate man, he is the chief and notable instance of "Hamlet left out of Hamlet."

Conscience in the Sleeping Man.

[Washington Star.]

Dreams have been regarded as an interesting subject of study ever since scientific thought was born. Locke, the essayist on the human understanding, was of the opinion that a man did not think at all when really asleep, while modern investigators in this line of research believe that thought no more ceases during sleep than a watch properly wound runs down in the night.

According to their notion, under such conditions the mechanical functions of the mind are active, though uncontrolled by the judgment, and thus it happens that one's dreams are apt to be unreasonable and even absurd.

Could anything be more interesting than to trace the progress of a dream, if it were only possible? Think of the variety of experiences through which one would be conveyed, untrammeled by the limitations of common sense which restrict one's waking thoughts, and freed from the moral responsibilities that encumber the doings of ordinary life. Probability sets no bounds to the dreamer's vision, and even conscience is dormant, since the most righteous of men do, on occasions, misbehave themselves most shockingly in the strange Land of Nod.

A Bird's Waterproof Nest.

[Portland Oregonian.]

Being out on a prospecting tour in the mountains and having some knowledge of birds and beasts in their native haunts, I was on the alert for anything I could see. One day while we were wading a mountain stream in Skamania county, Wash., I saw a water ousel leave a waterfall some twenty feet above the stream we were in. By helping my companion up the rocks he was enabled to reach the place where the bird had left, and was rewarded by finding the nest, a splendid waterproof nest, built in a crevice of the rocks where the water was pouring over and partly onto the fore part of the nest. I now have it and one egg at home in Vancouver, Wash., as a relic of our trip.

Is It To or Too?

[Notes and Queries.]

The violation of the particle "to" is a sin of continual growth, and not merely by that insertion of an adverb between it and the body of the verb censured by Taylor, but by total dislocation, as in such cases as "try to," "mean to," "going to" and "obliged to." Dr. Watts has been taxed with its perpetration in a well known line which occurs in his didactic rhyme for children, "Let dogs delight to bark and bite;" the probable truth being that he wrote not "for 'tis their nature 'to,'" but, "For 'tis their nature (id est, the nature of bears and tigers to growl and fight,) 'too.'" A misprint here is vastly more conceivable than an ungrammatical trip on the part of Dr. Watts.

Electricity Defied.

[Buffalo Express.]

I was standing on the back platform of a street car the other day when a high school boy asked the conductor, "What is electricity?"

The conductor made some jesting reply, when the lad, as if to show off a lesson he had just learned said, "Electricity is a manifestation of energy."

How delightfully definite! What an accession of knowledge the boy had received when he memorized that definition! No scientist can define electricity, but the bootblack who calls it "juice" is more precise than the high school lad.

OF INTEREST TO INVESTORS.

Safe, Profitable and Where You Can See It.

6 PER CENT GUARANTEED.

Much More Probable.

The Hall Mowing Machine Company offer for sale $50,000 of preferred stock The Chapman Banking Company of this city guarantees upon this stock a 6 per cent dividend, payable semi-annually, for three years, the first dividend being payable September 15, 1891. In ADDITION to the dividend guaranteed it can be readily shown that the stock is also certain to draw a contingent dividend much larger than that guaranteed. In our judgment it cannot fail to pay better than 20 per cent.

The company is the owner of patents which are conceded to be of the greatest value, and which many expert machinists predict will evolutionize the manufacture of mowers. The company has already more orders than it can fill the present year, and unquestionably has a future of exceptional prosperity. Among those interested in this enterprise are several of the strongest men of Portland and vicinity.

Until April 1st, unless previously withdrawn, this stock will be sold at par; after that date, at par and accrued guaranteed dividend.

The stock is offered solely for the purpose of extending the plant and building and equipping a new factory.

We shall be glad to give full particulars of our property and our plans to any investor who will call at our factory, 27 Commercial Street, Portland, or to furnish like information by mail to any who prefer to make inquiries in that way.

MOTHERS

Realize the great loss of their children when young from disease, or lack of vitality, and many times it comes from carelessness of the attending nurse. Be it inherited, climate, or disease developed from carelessness, there is relief and life is saved by the use of

MURDOCK'S LIQUID FOOD.

This is one of many cases that we can furnish, to show the value of our Liquid Food OVER ALL OTHER TREATMENTS, AND WHEN ALL OTHER TREATMENTS FAIL.

450 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY, July 3, '91.

MURDOCK LIQUID FOOD CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Gentlemen.—I have sent you by mail a photograph of my four children (boys), thinking that it might interest you a little, as they were all four brought up on your Liquid Food as their standard diet, most especially the one on the right of the picture. When he was about six months old he was very sick from having been given sour milk by a careless nurse—in fact was so bad the physician was unable to leave the house for two weeks, during which time the child was virtually dead from want of nutrition, as he was unable to keep anything whatever on his stomach. After trying all the known prepared foods, both foreign and domestic—none of which were of any use—the physician, as a final hope, had me buy a bottle of your Liquid Food, and from the very first five drops given he began to rally, and has been in most excellent health since.

Whenever any of them show any signs of weakness whatever we immediately give them your Liquid Food, and it always acts like a charm in restoring them to health.

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR J. PURSELL.

Any case that has been under medical treatment for three months and no relief we will carry free of expense, with Murdock's Liquid Food until cared or made better.

This building was formerly the Free Surgical Hospital for Women, and supported by the Murdock Liquid Food Company, Boston (now their works). Over 3000 women were treated in six years at a cost of $1.00 a day, including operations—which would amount to over $100,000—to prove the value of Nutrition as found in Murdock's Liquid Food. The last 1000 operations were made with a loss of 5 deaths.

The last 382 operations were made with only one death, and consisted of

Capital cases	45	Expiration of the heart	12
Rectal "	26	Curvature	40
Laceration of Cervix	129	Recision of Knee Joint	2
Rupture of Peritoneum	49	Excision and Drainage	9
Procidentia	38	Removal Carunole of Meatus	3
Vescio Vaginal Fistula	2	Replacing Uterus	2
Removal of Cysts	5	Dilation	12
" Polypo.	5	Expiration of Labia	1
" Nævus.	1
Recto	2

The women of Massachusetts die, 29, New York 32, Pennsylvania 30, to the 1000, annually.

These results show that the value of Nutrition as found in Murdock's Liquid Food in preventing relapse after operations, as it is as great as in curing all classes of disease, as it makes new blood faster than all food preparations known, and new blood will cleanse the system of disease, as well as heal the wounds after operations.

Murdock's Liquid Food Company,

UNDER A CLOUD.

[Buffalo News.]

I am Agnes Grey; or at least that was my name when one bright summer day, the sky as blue as though there never could be another cloud in it, I came home across the fields from Nellie Hobart's wedding. Very sweet she looked in her bridal dress, and very fond the gentleman to whom she had given her hand seemed to be of her. The church was decked with flowers, and not one of those who sat there but wished the pretty young creature well; and as she stepped out from the shadow of the painted windows into the clear, golden, out of door light I thought of the old rhyme—

Happy is the bride
Whom the sun shines on.

And thought that she looked like one of those fair saints the old masters were so fond of painting, blue eyed and blond, and with mouths like those of smiling babies.

I thought of something else, also, as I suppose every girl who had been to that wedding did, could one but know the truth. I wondered whether it would ever be my turn to stand where Nellie stood that day, and what manner of man my bridegroom would be; for, I had never yet seen any one I could fancy giving myself to, almost body and soul, as a wife must. I was making a picture of him for myself, like a goose, when my foot caught in the grass, where some boys had tied it, and down I fell, twisting my ankle and hurting my head, so that for awhile I knew nothing.

At last I felt some one lift me off the ground, and opened my eyes to see that it was a great, swarthy, black eyed girl of seventeen or so—a girl with a careless look about her dress which was not lady-like. But she had the voice and manner of a lady, and she asked me very kindly if I were much hurt; and, seeing that I was, picked me up in her strong arms and carried me through a garden gate and into a little parlor, where she laid me on a sofa and bathed my head with rose water and told me to keep up my courage, for "Gideon has gone for a doctor."

That name told me where I was. I was under a roof that I had never thought would shelter me, no matter what would come to pass. I would have risen and gone away if I could have stirred from the odd old sofa. For this was Gideon Lee's old homestead, and here dwelt the children of the man who, sixteen years before, had been hung for the murder of my Uncle Mathew.

I was but a baby when it all happened, but I could remember how the whole village was astir in search of the missing man, and how a body was found at last in the heart of Alcott's woods, and how the facts that there had been a quarrel between Gideon Lee and Uncle Mathew, and that Gideon Lee owed the latter money, and how they were last seen together quarreling in Gideon's garden, where a bloody handkerchief, marked "M. G.," was found soon after, and brought Gideon to the gallows.

Perhaps hearing the story afterward from my grandfather made me fancy I remembered it, but at all events the name I had learned to hate was that of Gideon Lee. And now it was the child born on the day of her mother's death—the very day on which the father met his awful fate—who lifted me from the ground, dusky Madge Lee, who had never found a playmate nor a friend in the town because of the ban upon her father's name, and Gideon, the son, who had been old enough to understand it all at the time, who came in with old Dr. Humphries soon after.

They were not poor people. The house was a substantial one, and there were more books and pictures and tokens of refinement within than country homes generally boast of. But even the farm hands spoke contemptuously of the "son of the man who was hung," and the servants who were hired by Madge Lee were not natives of the place.

And here was I, Mathew Grey's own niece, lying under the roof, and likely to be there for some time, for the doctor forbade my removal.

"I must go home—I must go away from this house!" I said, angrily and feverishly.

And Madge Lee looking down on me as an Indian princess might, with her dark eyes aglow, said, in a bitter voice, "Never fear, Miss Grey, we'll not murder you!" and somehow abashed me, haughty as I was.

Grandpa was away from home, or I think even the risk of my life would not have kept him from taking me away, and I grew ill and delirious, and Madge Lee nursed me as a sister might, and Gideon was kinder than a brother. He read to me; he brought me cooling drinks made of fruits after some Oriental recipes which he possessed; he found sweet flowers dripping with dew in the woods, and he sang, as I never heard any one sing before, those Scottish ballads that are lovelier than any other music ever written, to my mind; and it ended in my loving them.

So when I was well enough to go away I took Madge's hand in mine and said, "How shall I ever thank you for your tender care of me?"

And she answered, "Agnes Grey, the only gratitude I ask is belief in us. The people down there" (and she pointed with her brown hand toward the town) "call us the children of a murderer. We are the children of a martyr instead. I never saw my father, but we both know that he is innocent. And Gideon remembers his kindness, his tenderness, his gentleness and his honor.

"Your uncle Mathew—forgive me, but it is the truth—was a wild, bad fellow. He quarreled with my father, not father with him, and the debt was paid. Mother saw it do her good, and heard his boast that the money should take him beyond the reach of irksome laws and chattering tongues. And for the bloody handkerchief, he had cut his hand, and unbound and washed it, and tied it up afresh in mother's very sight that day. Don't dare to doubt it; don't be so cruel as to doubt it, Agnes Grey."

Then she brought me the picture that they kept as a sacred relic, and verses written by his hand and tender love letters yellow with age, and as I looked at the face—so sweet, so good, so like that of the Gideon Lee I knew—I felt sure that those who stood before me, though they were the children of the man who was hung, were not the offspring of a murderer. And afterward Gideon also spoke.

"It is hard to bear," he said; "hard to know that we must bear it all our lives; but if you only see the truth—if only, without proof, you will understand that we know no murder was ever done by our dear father's hand—we, who have his pictured face upon the wall, the letters written to our mother, the words our mother wrote begging us to read them often when she was dead, and never doubt the man who on his knees in the condemned cell, calling on God to witness his last words, had sworn to the wife who would have loved him even had he in some hasty moment dealt a fatal blow, that he knew nothing of Mathew Grey's death and even doubted that he was dead at all—if you can believe with us and not with those who were his murderers, I, at least, shall have a lighter heart."

And I put my hand into his, and gave the other to Madge, and said honestly, "I do believe as you do, and I always will."

And so I went away; but I took their faces with me, their pleasant ways, their voices. As for Gideon's face, it haunted me. There was about him a charm that no one else ever had. They were all quaint, all charming in their way, but he most of all.

A pretty scandal there was through the town when I began to go down to the farmhouse to see my friends. I knew it, and fought it bravely.

"Gideon Lee never killed any one," I vowed aloud to those who chided me, "I will not ban his children for the fault of others."

But there in the town were those who had been at the trial, and eleven of the jurymen and witnesses; and under a stone in the graveyard were the bones that had been sworn to as Uncle Mathew's, and in a bleak, lonely spot near the prison the coffin of the man who was hung; and how dared I, a baby almost at the time, to judge for myself.

I knew they were right enough, but I never faltered. I was as sure as Madge was that her father never killed Uncle Mathew.

They would not come to my home. Indeed, grandfather would have had the door closed in their faces, but nothing could keep me from them. And it was dangerous work for me, too, as I began to know before long, to sit so much by Gideon Lee's side, to hear his dear voice so often, to feel my heart thrilling with a loving pity for him for which I had no words. He was my wounded and despised knight, this dear Gideon Lee, before I had known him three months, and I would have given my life for him. But he said no words of love to me nor I to him. Just friends we were, and nothing more, outwardly. That was enough for the town—enough for grandfather. I was called unnatural. I found my dearest friends grown cold. Even the clergyman asked me if "it would not harm me to hold companionship with such people."

And I said: "They are the best people I have ever known. And even had their father done the deed for which he died, they would be no worse for it. As it is he was murdered, and you are all cruel to these poor children of his—cruel and unchristian."

So he left me angrily, and so may a friend I'd left me, and all my comfort was to sit between Madge and Gideon in the quiet evenings and talk to them.

In the summer time we used to light no candles, and the moonlight fell through the ivy leaves upon us, and the old dog lay at our feet and put his curly head upon Madge's lap. We would tell stories of fairies and goblins or sing romantic songs written before any of us were born. Now and then Gideon would steal his arm about my waist or hold my hand awhile, and wrong though any one might have thought there was no more harm in it than though we had been children.

Just so we were sitting one evening, when grandfather walked into our midst and clutched me fiercely by the arm. No need to repeat the words he uttered. The insults stung me as sharply as they could Gideon Lee's children. But he forbade me ever to speak to them again and took me home with him.

The last glimpse I caught of the brother and sister showed them to be standing hand in hand, their fingers clutched tight, their teeth set, their faces white with wrath under the moonlight. It was my last glimpse for many years, for the day after this we sailed for Canada. Grandfather was a Canadian, and it was partly to revisit his native land and partly to put the ocean between the Lees and me that he took the voyage. But he could not tear my heart from them. I loved them better than ever. But suddenly, as he knelt there looking up into my eyes, I saw a look in his face that I could not understand—a look that made me cry out and begin to tremble; and I saw others draw near; and I saw Madge clasp her brother's hand, and the old man held out both of his to me.

"We have been parted five years," said Gideon. "In that time I have been searching for something that I believed must be hidden in the wide world. I have found it."

"Gideon, tell me," I cried.

"Could any earthly thing but one embolden me to speak as I have spoken to you?" said Gideon. "Do you think that I would ever have offered any woman a name that would have made her an outcast? That which I sought, that which I found, was a living proof of my dear father's innocence. Look! do you know this man? Have you no recollection of him?"

And I turned my eyes upon the old man, who had taken my hand in his, and knew that I looked upon my uncle Mathew.

The whole town knows the story now. He has told them how, yielding to his wandering impulses, he left, as he had done once before, the home and friends of his early manhood, and far from all news of Christian lands dwelt in the Arab's tent upon the desert and wandered with him over the burning sands, loving the life too well to leave it, and never hearing of Gideon Lee's unjust condemnation, or of his terrible fate, until his son stood before him and bade him, if one drop of Christian pity lingered in his soul for the man on whom he had brought this awful doom, to return and prove by his living presence the fact of his innocence and of his unjust death.

They speak of Gideon Lee's children now as of those of a martyr; and the ban is lifted from the name that I have taken for my own.

Money Easy—Stocks Open Active and Close Dull but Firm.

Sterling Exchange Quiet and Steady—Railroads Dull and Heavy.

Quotations of Staple Products in New York, Chicago and St. Louis.

Stocks and Bonds.

At New York money on call has been easy, with no loans, and closing offered at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper at 5½@7 per cent. Sterling Exchange is quiet and steady with actual business for bankers bills at 4 84½ for 60-day bills, 4 86¾ for demand; posted rates 4 85½@4 87½. Commercial bills are 4 83½ and 4 85¾. Government bonds are dull and heavy. Railroad bonds dull and heavy.

In the stock market after 11 o'clock there was an attempt to discount a favorable bank statement, and the buying meeting with no resistance a sharp upward movement resulted in all active shares. Sugar rose 1¾, Chicago Gas 1½, Burlington 1⅜, St Paul 1½, Lackawana, Union Pacific and Rock Island each 1 per cent and others fractions. The bank statement was not so encouraging as expected and dullness followed, the market closing dull but firm near the best prices of the day.

The transactions at the Stock Exchange aggregated 79,300 shares.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Deane & Colley a proposition was made to settle for 75 cents on the dollar, Mr. Colley to assume the entire indebtedness of the firm and Mr. Deane to retire.

Go and see McCallum's "London by Night."

Nathaniel Harrington, with the Twitchell-Champlin Company, had a fall and cut his head seriously. Dr. Warren dressed his wound and the patient is as comfortable as could be expected.

The "Herald train," due at 7 a. m. yesterday over the Western division of the Boston & Maine, was delayed an hour and a half by a hot box and so people had to wait for their papers.

The Italian who sells Frankfort sausages in Monument square was on his way home Saturday night, when he was assaulted by three toughs and his money and sausages taken.

There was a large crowd went up to Lake Sebago yesterday to hear the Chandler's band concerts. The music was delightful, the crowd very orderly and evidently enjoyed the music exceedingly.

Mr. Charles Milliken, who resigned the treasurership of the Portland Company, has been succeeded by Hon. B. D. Verrill, pro tem. Mr. Milliken was chosen a director. The company is building four locomotives.

Yesterday was a charming day. The wind was west-southwest and most agreeable, and the mercury went into the seventies. Numbers of people visited the islands, sailed in the bay and went to Old Orchard and Deering.

The officers of Ancient Landmark Lodge, No. 17, F. & A. M., have made arrangements for a shore dinner at the Portland Club House, Great Diamond, for next Wednesday afternoon, August 5th, at 2.30 o'clock. The boat will leave at 1 p. m.

Workmen have been at work for a month putting in the switch board at the new office of the Telephone Company at the corner of Milk and Exchange streets, and it will require two or three weeks longer. The company expect to be in working order at the new office by September 1.

There were 29 arrests last week, of which 16 were for drunkenness and eight for larceny. Officer Brackett will be night turnkey at the station, and Officer Usher will take McGrath's beat and Officer Woodbury Brackett's beat. Officer Harris will take the signal telephone while Newcomb goes on a vacation.

Everyone talking of "London by Night."

Picnic of Lewiston Marketmen.

Wednesday, the Lewiston marketmen will make their annual excursion this year to Long Island. They will wear dark clothes, straw hats, white aprons and gloves, and be headed by the Lewiston Band. The trains will leave Lewiston at 7.30 a. m. The committee are Colonel A. B. Neally, George Pottle, H. B. Bartlett, John Garner, J. W. Peables, I. V. McKenney, P. J. Cronin, A. M. Penley, E. W. Dresser, W. E. Cloutier, Abram Atwood.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION.

A Circular Issued by Chief Marshal Hogan.

The programme of sports for Labor Day is an excellent one, as follows:

Tug of War—Twelve men on a side, between delegates of the Lewiston and Auburn Central Labor Union and delegates of the Portland Central Labor Union. Prize, a box of Union Label cigars.

One Hundred Yards Dash—Open to all. First prize, $5; second prize, $2.50.

One Hundred Yards Dash—Open to members of labor organizations, union card to be presented. First prize, a smoking set; second prize, a cigar holder.

One Hundred Yards Dash—For ladies only. First prize, a gold ring; second prize, a writing desk.

Three Standing Jumps—Prize, a silk umbrella, the gift of Robert Somers.

Game of Base Ball—Between members of the Lasters' and Bricklayers' union. Prize, a box of cigars.

The committee on boat races will probably decide on the following:

Junior Single Scull—First prize, a gold watch; second prize, a silver watch.

Intermediate Single Scull—First prize, a gold watch; second prize, a silver watch.

Senior Single Scull—Between A. A. Frates of Portland and G. J. Kirby of Providence, R. I. This race is not as yet decided upon. Prize, a gold watch.

Among the many amusements for the public will be boating, base ball, foot ball, air rifle practice, speaking and a well arranged order of dances.

The names of distinguished expected guests have been published in the PRESS. A souvenir programme containing a history of the Central Labor Union and its affiliated unions all of whom will take part will be issued. The Lewiston and Auburn Union want 2000 tickets reserved for them. Chief Marshal Hogan, of the procession Saturday issued the following circular:

PORTLAND, Aug. 1, 1891.

All classes of workingmen, organized as well as unorganized, desirous of taking part in the parade Labor Day, are hereby requested to so inform the undersigned, stating the branch of industry represented and giving the number of men in their ranks. It is essential that the Chief Marshal should receive notification as soon as possible, in order that the lines can be formed in a classification of trades and callings. All classes of labor should avail themselves of the invitation extended by the Central Labor Union, organize temporarily and take part in the parade.

Yours obediently,
P. W. HOGAN, Chief Marshal.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

PORTLAND THEATRE.

Saturday night Mr. Dale Armstrong, who has been the manager of Portland Theatre, severed his connection with that house. He has been ordered to Worcester to assume the management of Dr. Lothrop's new theatre there. The employes of the theatre presented Mr. Armstrong with a solid silver pocket knife. Mr. Armstrong is a most agreeable gentleman and he will be much missed.

Tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, the beautiful French romance, "The Corsican Brothers," a drama made world famous by such actors as Chas Fechter, Charles Kean, Edwin Adams, R. B. Mantel and others, will be given. Mr. Meldon will appear in the dual role of Louis and Fabien del Franchi, a character more ambitious than any he has yet appeared in here. Miss Ethel Tucker will have a chance to display her talent to fine effect, and display elegant dressing, as Emilie De Lesparre. The remaining characters will be in good hands. New scenery has been provided, the costumes are rich and picturesque, and the appointments perfect in detail. The vision effects, under the personal supervision of Mr. Wallace, will be presented with all the weirdness that modern stage craft is capable of. Each performance will be preceded by the laughable farce "Lollypop," with Messrs. Wilkes, McElroy and Gray and Miss Josie DeVoy as the fun makers. For the latter half of the week the great Boston Museum success, written by the great Lester Wallack, entitled "Rosedale, or the Rifle Ball," will be presented.

PAVILION THEATRE.

This week Mr. McCallum announces "London by Night," a powerful sensational drama in four acts. This, it is thought, will be the strongest play ever put on at the island, and preparations for a successful presentation have been going on for the past three weeks. Mr. Pickman, scenic artist, has been busy on new scenery, and the Browning Bros., stage machinists, have been getting the mechanical effects in shape. Miss Emma Pollock rejoins the company today and her new and pleasing specialties will be a feature of the entertainment. All going should secure their seats at Stockbridge's music store, and avoid the rush at the box office.

GREENWOOD GARDEN.

Mr. Knowlton has built in Greenwood Garden, in the rear of the Opera House, a large tank that will hold one hundred thousand gallons of water. The coming week Miss Clara Beckwith, the champion lady swimmer of the world, will give several exhibitions during the day and evening. She will dive from the steamer S. E. Spring some afternoon during the week, while on her way to the island, and swim to the garden. In the Opera House, the Blocksom and Burns Vaudeville Company have been engaged at great expense, also the Mackleys, Hamilton and Glynn, Miss Tutlen, the charming singer, and Mr. Sefton in a new act. Take the Greenwood Garden line from Portland Pier. All tickets over this line admit to the garden and entertainments.

WILD WEST.

A show that will draw people as the "Wild West" is doing surely must have something of merit. And this company has. Take the riding, shooting, etc., that of itself is enough to warrant the big crowds that daily visit the grounds. The Cow Boys are more than pleased to meet every one that chooses to visit the camp, and the large excursions that visit the island find the "Wild West" a place where they can "just enjoy themselves," as one gentleman expressed it, and yesterday as fine a class of people as ever visited any entertainment in Portland was in the grounds, and Capt. Littell met many of them who enjoyed her matter-of-fact talk and off-hand conversation. Come one and all. Take Casco Bay boats and ask for Wild West coupons.

NOTES.

The new Columbia Theatre, Boston, will not be opened until September 22, a little later than was first announced. "Men and Women" is the attraction. It will be the finest theatre in the city, although the Boston will still lead in seating capacity, this one accommodating 2100 persons.

PERSONAL.

Bishop Healy is expected home from California today.

General Neal Dow has gone to New Hampshire. He expects to return Friday.

President Capen, of Tufts College, has been in Portland for the past few weeks.

Mr. William Deering of Chicago, formerly of this city, is registered at the Falmouth Hotel.

Mr. Maturin Ballou, of New York, the publisher and author, is at the Falmouth Hotel.

Rev. Henry Blanchard, D. D., preached at the Universalist church in Gorham, N. H., yesterday.

General George E. Dyer of Washington, D. C., is visiting Mr. Martin at Sunny Crest, Bridgton Highlands.

Mr. D. H. Ingraham, of this city, is being talked of as the Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, in 1892.

Judge Springer of Iowa, Mr. Frank Springer of New Mexico and Miss Evans of Attleboro Falls, Mass., are being entertained by Miss Thomas, Danforth street.

General Passenger Agent F. E. Boothby and a party of fifteen returned Friday night from Bar Harbor. Among the party were Col. Harris A. Wheeler and Mrs. Small of Chicago.

Mr. John J. Lappin of this city, Deputy High Chief Ranger of the Foresters of Maine, will represent this state at the biennial convention of Foresters at Brooklyn, N. Y., next week.

John J. McGuines of this city, a graduate of the High school class of '88, of St. Charles College, Baltimore, and the Montreal Seminary, will be ordained to the priesthood next Sunday.

Mr. Parker of Greene, graduate of Bates, and late principal at East Corinth, will be principal of Westbrook high school, and Miss Johnson, Gorham, 3d assistant. Mr. Sinclair will be principal of the Cumberland Mills school.

Thursday, at his home in South Norwalk, Conn., was celebrated the 80th birthday of Rev. Dr. Seward, formerly of the Plymouth Congregational church of this city. A number of letters of congratulation were sent from his former parishioners in Portland.

AT KENNEBUNKPORT.

Life at This Fine Old Watering Place—A Bashful Hero—Excursions and Other Sports.

"Moving incidents by field and flood" thicken as August begins. The daily increasing arrivals are greeted by effusive demonstrations on the part of those already at Kennebunkport, as one and another habitue of this divine spot is discovered. The matrons gather mornings in groups to compare notes as to changes, pleasant or otherwise, in their last year's room, only to break up for drives, walks or to join the jolly barge-party for the beach as the smiling Walter appears to announce that Cleopatran conveyance and "the bells keeps up its clatter" until with blasts from an asthmatic fish-horn the barge rattles away, writes Cora S. Wheeler, in the Boston Transcript. Nothing more delightful has been planned this year than the visit of two large buckboard loads to Mousam Falls the other day. I'm glad I do not have to pronounce that name for you, since whichever way I call it, I am promptly corrected so that I think of alluding to that rare wild, dream-inspiring series of cascades as "them falls." I shall then at least be sure that I deserve correction. Colonel Spooner, to whom we owe much that is pleasant, arranged it. Both buckboards are marvels of cushioned ease, and one had an ingenious arrangement of a wicker umbrella-holder and another for wraps, so that sudden showers might be provided for without personal responsibility. But Colonel Spooner must have had a tip from the clerk of the weather, such a radiant sun shone while that fluttering breath from the water was abroad that bids defiance to heat. It was keen delight to those of us who know the quaint attractions of Kennebunk town to hear, as we rode through it, the appreciative exclamations of those new to its beauties. Its stately old residences rendolent of substantial forefathers. Its elms planted at the time of the Declaration of Independence. Its singular freak of regard for inanimate things, which has built a barn about one stately tree; and the interest in the old Boutelle homestead on its upland-sloping lawn. What generations of childish feet have raced up to its wide entrance, away from the street, built when domestic reticence and dignity were essential and summer paragraphing of personalities unknown! The birthplace of Hugh McCullough, Sr., twice secretary of the treasury, and that of the unfortunate Ida Bourne, who perished on Mt. Washington. We viewed with a bit of chill the shattered fence where Mrs. J. C. White and Miss Achorn of Providence were dashed about by their frightened horses last week. The carriage was shattered, but the ladies bravely saved their breath and strength and were rewarded for not screaming with their lives and members uninjured.

Mr. Grosbeck of New York and her young son arrived on the scene in season to bring the ladies home in their cart. Everything is "adjacent to" this house, but really it is an unusual summer privilege to have next door to "the boat builder's" office and under our eaves a Tabernacle which serves as a playhouse and centre of political rallies all the week and serves up red-hot diatribes of no mean eloquence on Sundays against play-going and card-playing, from baccarat to bumblepuppy. The sermons attract the most listeners, I confess, and the reverenced clergyman, who fills the Congregational pulpit, wins our entire respect, if he does not convert the irrepressible eight who, even as I write, are whiling away the morning hours in the pleasant office with "the beguiling pasteboards," to quote from Sunday's sermon. One of the features of each evening is the Children's Reel, which gives them at an early hour one merry dance before they yield the floor. All agree that the mite men and maids that we have among us are exceptionally well bred and attractive. There is not among them, thus far, one enfant terrible. This prompt courtesy to all older people as well as among themselves is something to restore one's confidence in the training of the American mother, of which we have also the most charming group. Who says that children are a luxury of the past generation? Table after table in the dining-room is nearly or quite filled with one family party. I am so weary of the perpetual touch of opprobrium with which people speak of "Westerners"—that is, the inelegant summer noun, personal pronoun that I wish to say that this summer as well as last, we have with us a large family of Western people, last year from Chicago, this year from Cleveland, who especially attract everyone by those very characteristics which to me are typical of my Western and Southern friends, and which those who only shoot through their own vast land never meet in the West any more than the Western traveller meets the cultivated people of New England by darting in and out of its cities or swooping through the farming country like a dragon fly. Some of their spoken and written comments are as unjust and as ignorantly malignant as though the dragon fly should write of his travels with his sting (if he owns one.) This afternoon the swift incoming tide bore all manner of gray burdens up to the various landings which the River Club has thoroughly placed since last season for the use of the public, to whose care and protection they are left.

A very enjoyable trip was made lately to the Appledore, Isle of Shoals, Kittery Point and the beautiful new Albracca on York Harbor, by a party of five from Parker's. They left one morning and returned the next noon. We are now planning chartering a big Pullman car for the coaching parade at North Conway, and having a drag and horses ready for us to join the spectacle. It is but a day's outing. The day carnival of boats will occur Aug. 12, at 3 p. m. Aug. 14 will be the boys' sports on the beach. Aug. 16 men's four-oared boat race, lady coxswain; Aug. 18, ladies' four-oar, and so on. Mr. Prosper Senal receives the entries. The entertainments of the past ten days have been a mock trial at Grove Hill House, Kennebunk Beach. W. F. Paul was the sheriff and F. W. Adams was attorney for the plaintiff, both from Boston. A clambake was given Wednesday evening to forty invited guests by Mr. Abbott Graves, our Boston artist. Boats lighted by Japanese lanterns conveyed the party to Goochs Beach. Well known names among them were Lieut. Com. Walker, U. S. N., Col. S. A. Drake, W. E. Blunt, surveyor of the port, Boston. W. E. Ware and Miss Bertha Ware, of Boston are again at the Ocean Bluff, also Mr. Bertram Lord, Mr. F. D. French, Mr. W. H. Sands and Miss Sands of Commonwealth avenue. "The Castle" has been let for the season to Mr. F. A. Dwight, a millionaire from Brooklyn. There are to be races Friday at the new driving park, and last evening a crowded house at the Arundel Casino greeted the Tufts College Glee Club. The river and other attractions proved too much for us this side of the bridge; and I could not find a single maid or matron to attend, for which I was sorry as I dearly love a college song, and the Tufts men gave a delightfully "finished performance" as the two gentlemen who attended from here reported. Boston knows them well. Saturday evening the Parker House gives its first grand hop with the Ideal Orchestra, assisted by our own.

I heard a story the other day which is good enough to tell. A boat or canoe upset with two men in it, who naturally went out of it promptly. Not less prompt was a young man who witnessed the overturn and fled across the sand to the water's edge, tearing off his garments as he ran, with but one idea, to save the men. He had them out before a boat could possibly have reached them, although these were on hand to do their part. The brief excitement having brought out a crowd to the water's verge, the hero of the occasion was in a dilemma, since having undressed, so to describe it, "on the fly," his scant attire made it impossible to land among the unconscious crowd waiting to applaud. "Those ladies will have to go away or I can't come out today!" Needless to say, they went away.

Teamsters at Long Island.

The Teamsters and Truckmen's Association had a delightful outing at Long Island, Saturday. Joseph Fernald marshalled the fine looking body of 260 stalwart men, who marched to the inspiring strains of the Bramhall Fife and Drum Corps to the steamer Cadet. At the island, the ball game between the Commercial and Middle street nines, was won by the latter by a score of 15 to 3. The 200 yards dash was won by F. W. Roberts of Chicopee, Mass., in 24 seconds, and the 100 yards by G. Graham in 15 seconds. Ponce furnished a capital dinner. The Wild West show was visited and much enjoyed. On the return the newspapers were serenaded. At the island a vote of thanks was given to the merchants and others who in any way helped to make the occasion a success.

The guests of the occasion were the checkers of the various railroads, among them being Messrs. Driscoll, Heath, Hassett, Purington, Brooks, Plummer and Brockman.

The success of the occasion was largely due to the efforts of the efficient committee who had the matter in charge. They were Messrs. J. Gooding, Jr., Copeland, Mayberry, Bulger, Brackett, Hyde, Blades, Crockett, Raymoss, Miller, Black, Sweeney, Cady, Bailey, Loring, O'Neil, Fernald, Lufkin, Kent and McDuffee.

Liquor Seizures.

Sheriffs Sterling and Plummer seized liquors Saturday at No. 467 Commercial street, and McGlinchy and Gould got the bartender and a can of whiskey at 32 Maple street.

At 265 Fore street, occupied by Francesco Faggiali, the deputies found a keg of lager in a tub of cold water, a siphon lying beside it, and a case of Uno beer bottles. The presumption was that the bottles were to be filled with lager and sold for Uno. Faggiali was arrested.

PULPIT AND PLATFORM.

NEW JERUSALEM CHURCH.

The sermon yesterday morning by Rev. Wm. B. Hayden, was on "The importance of a faithful observance of the Christian Sabbath," from the text: "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy."

The whole subject lies so near the vital interests of the community, it must necessarily recur at intervals for discussion and adjustment. The day we propose to keep is not a Jewish institution, coming at the end of the week, devoted only to repose or inaction; but a Christian institution, a day to be filled with exalted activities and devoted to the highest and best of uses. When our Lord came on earth He declared Himself lord also of the Sabbath. He changed the method of keeping it and also the day on which it is to be observed. He consecrated the first day of the week by rising on that day, appearing to His disciples on successive weeks, granting the Pentecostal outpouring of the Spirit (as commonly believed) on that day, and 40 years later giving the Revelation to John in Patmos; where it is significantly called "the Lord's day."

Its uses are, refraining from worldly and ordinary occupations, and a devotion to the cultivation of the spiritual part of the mind, those faculties which relate us to the Lord Jesus Christ and His Kingdom. The day should be exclusively devoted to religion, to instruction in revealed truths, to worship, prayer and praise in the sanctuary, and certain acts of Christian love to the neighbor.

Attention was called to the fact that the command belongs to the first table of the law, defining our duties to God. These are always placed foremost, taking precedence of those to the neighbor. We must come into right relations to God, obeying Him, revering His name and keeping His day holy before we are qualified to do truly Christian good to the neighbor.

The question is of national importance. Public morality depends upon it. Neglect or desecration of the Lord's day tends inevitably to the melting away of Christian civilization, to moral decline, and finally to barbarism.

The Electric Road Kills a Mastiff.

The Deering electric railroad found its first victim yesterday. Everyone who rides along Forest avenue is familiar with the magnificent mastiff always seen about the residence of J. S. Ricker, Esq. It was one of the finest dogs in the vicinity of Portland kind and playful, and the delight of children although of large size and somewhat savage aspect. Yesterday afternoon about half past five o'clock the big mastiff was out playing by the track as two cars came along bound for Portland. Just how it happened no one seems to know, but it is probable that the mastiff, seeing one car go by, inferred that the track was clear and ran onto it in time to be run over by the second car. The wheel cut the dog completely in two. He gave one agonizing yell and died instantly. Perhaps he received an electric shock at the time the wheel passed over him.

Thrown from Her Carriage.

Mrs. Woodbridge G. Osborne of this city was on her way home from the Cape Friday night. At Knightville the driver heard a team coming with great fury and he tried to get out of the road but did not succeed, and his carriage was struck and demolished. Mrs. Osborne was thrown with great force to the ground, sustaining very serious and painful injuries. She was assisted to a house near by and then home, where she will eventually recover. The parties in the colliding carriage were a white man and a black woman, both of whom were intoxicated. The man was thrown out, but the carriage was not hurt, and picking himself and his bottle of whiskey up, he got into his carriage and drove rapidly off, without even inquiring whether his recklessness had cost anybody's life or not.

Funeral of the Late Mrs. George N. Coyle.

The funeral of the late Mrs. George N. Coyle took place at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. As the funeral procession entered, Prof. Quinby, organist, played a solemn march. Requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. M. H. McGrath, who also delivered an appropriate eulogy. The church was well filled with the numerous friends of the deceased, who testified their love by many rich floral tributes which rested upon the white casket. Messrs. William H. Lowery, Joseph A. McGowan, Edward S. Somers and John K. Gately acted as pall bearers. The remains were interred in Calvary Cemetery.

The Mackerel Fleet.

The latest reports from the fleet state that no more mackerel are being found. Three vessels with mackerel were lately in Boothbay, and they report no improvement in the prospects, and that the fleet is working eastward. The schooner L. F. Gould reports that the fleet has worked east of Mt. Deser Rock. A week ago every seiner had boats out and 100 schools or more of mackerel could be easily counted.

Died from His Injuries.

About a year ago, Martin Green, residing at 7 Pleasant street, while sleeping on the roof of the house adjoining Helber's stable, Pleasant street, fell from the roof to the ground beneath and broke his back. It was but recently that he returned to his family from the Maine General Hospital, and Saturday he died from the effects of his injuries. He was 33 years of age and leaves a widow and two children.

The Death Rate.

The number of deaths in the city for last week was 13, from the following causes:

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of real estate in the county have been recorded at the registry of deeds:

Portland—Harry B. Mitchell to James B. Mitchell. $1.

Harriet E. Vaughn to James B. Mitchell. $1.

Cape Elizabeth—Fred L. Harrington to William H. Gardiner. $50.

Yarmouth—John B. Brackett to John A. Tuttle and Charles F. Soule. $1.

MAINE TOWNS.

Deering.

A petition signed by Otis Brown, a resident of Pleasant street, Woodfords, and 28 others, has been presented to the board of municipal officers asking for the construction of a sewer on that street, one on Saunders street extending through South street to Stevens Plains avenue, and the whole to be connected with the sewer constructed last year on Forest avenue, and the municipal officers have ordered a hearing on the premises August 4th in the afternoon. If the prayer of the petitioners is granted by the municipal officers then a special town meeting will be necessary. The construction of such a system of sewers as asked for will necessitate the filling of Coyle's gully if the plan adopted is adhered to, and those acquainted with the nature of the composition of the earth where it is proposed to operate say an expense of fully $50,000 will be incurred.

Cape Elizabeth.

The Franklin Manufacturing Company will erect an additional two story building for its growing business.

Memorial windows will be placed in the North church for Mrs. Willard, Captain B. J. Willard's mother, Mrs. Caleb Williams, T. G. Prince, Mrs. Caroline Fox Jordan, Martha Woodbury and Ephriam and Charlotte Sawyer.

The main street at Knightville is a bog and should be fixed.

Non Forfeiture Laws in Life Insurance.

The numerous payments of life insurance claims that are required to be made on lapsed policies in compliance with what is known as "non-forfeiture law" in life insurance, and the amounts of such payments made in many single cases, as well as in their aggregate, proves beyond all questioning, how immensely beneficial to the policy-holding interest in life insurance such laws are constantly operating. But of all State legislating on the subject of 'lapses of life insurance policies,' it is conceded that the "Maine Non-forfeiture Law" is the superior law of any other in the Union in preserving longest, the rights of assureds on policies that lapse on account of non-payment of premiums, and that compel the largest possible returns to such policy-holders.

The efficiency of the operations of the "Maine Non-forfeiture Law," and the number and amounts of death claims satisfied, which but for this law, payments could not have been required, is most forcibly illustrated in the business of the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Portland, Me., whose policies, no matter in what section of our country they may be issued, are controlled by the provisions of this "Maine Non-forfeiture Law."

Under the operations of this Maine Non-forfeiture Law, the Union Mutual Life, from April 1877 to July 1888, a period of a little more than 11 years, has paid 128 policies that had lapsed, and on which but for this law there could have been no payments enforced. The aggregate of the amounts insured under these 128 policies were $272,478.77. The amounts of unpaid premiums thereon being $28,009.57, and the net amounts paid by the company were $244,469.20. During the three years elapsing from July 1888 to July 1891, the Union Mutual Life, under the operations of this Maine Non-forfeiture law, have been required to settle the death claims on no less than fifty more policies that had lapsed, and on which the company paid the very large aggregate of nearly $100,000.

The above record then of but this one company, that alone has paid in 14 years the large number of 178 lapsed policies, and an aggregate of near $340,000 to policy-holders whom but for this non-forfeiture law would have had no legal claim, need no further proof of the benefits resulting to policy-holders from such a law, and as the Union Mutual Life Insurance Company in the mean time has flourished and grown abundantly, the conclusion must be, that the practical working of an enactment like the Maine Non-forfeiture law, must be satisfactory to all the interests of life insurance.—Philadelphia Intelligencer.

NEW ADVERISEMENTT.

The weather today is likely to be fair.

PORTLAND, August 3, 1891.

WE'RE going to sacrifice the Caps

They're in the way. Other goods are clamoring for the space they occupy; they've got to go to make room for new things which are coming.

We've applied the lever that will make them move fastest. We have struck at the root of things----the prices.

This morning they'll be marked 10 cents each. Saturday the lowest price for the poorest on the counter was 19 cents---- a few weeks ago they were 50 cents everywhere, and the Caps are as good now as they've ever been.

We make no apology for the quality, it needs none. We cannot say "damaged" as an excuse for such a toppling of prices, because they're NOT damaged; our only reason for cutting them to such a price is to be rid of the whole three or four hundred in a day----10 cts.
